MP's Pass Education Bill After Close Vote Of 21-19

by Burke Doran

The question of whether money for education from federal sources would be a boon or a bane to the people of Canada was thrown around and thrashed out on the floor of the Model Parliament last night. Under the friendly guidance of Speaker Claude S. Richardson, M.P., debate rolled along in an orderly fashion.

The session, held in the Union ballroom, was opened by the traditional carrying-in of the mace. Contrary to tradition, however, the government was seated on the Speaker's right and Her Majesty's Most Loyal Opposition on his left.

Prayers in Parliament

Wesley Rapoport, leader of the Liberal party and Prime Minister of the Model Parliament, started proceedings by introducing the Speaker, Mr. Richardson. Taking the chair, Mr. Richardson spoke for approximately 30 minutes, during which time he welcomed Heath McQuarrie, M.P., mentioned the custom at Ottawa of brief prayers before each session, extended an invitation to both sides of the House to visit him and Mr. McQuarrie in Ottawa some time in the coming year, and asked the two black-cloaked girls sitting immediately in front of him who they were. They replied that they were pages.

The Speaker then expressed the wish that the pages would not be bothered by the carrying of messages, which would entail their leaving his side. He also paid fitting tribute to the "charming Clerk", Elaine Nadler.

The high-point of the evening was the moving of a bill by the government which would provide for federal educational grants to be given to the provinces in relation to the school-age population of each province and which would be turned over to provincial authorities for use as they saw fit. The motion, proposed by Phil De-Zwirek, was carried by a vote of 21 to 19.

One of the Ministers of the Crown, Maurice LeBlanc from Engineering, was abducted yesterday afternoon in an apparent attempt to diminish the Liberal majority. LeBlanc, in an interview with the Daily, said that he was escorted into a waiting black sedan upon his exit from the Engineering Building after lectures. The plan proved abortive, however, when Maurice, bound hand and foot to a chair which was in turn tied to a bed in an unidentified house near the campus, was aided in his escape by a Liberal sympathizer. Informed sources later told the Daily that it had been the intention of certain people connected with the Model Parliament to deliver Maurice, who was the Postmaster General,

WOMEN'S UNION SPONSORS SCHOLARSHIP FUND FAIR

by Helen Kydd

The second annual Women's Union Fair will be officially opened by Dr. Roscoe at three o'clock today in the dining hall of R.V.C. The Fair is open to both men and women, whether they are McGill students or not.

Most of the articles have been made by hand by the women students at McGill, or, as in the case of second-hand articles, have been donated by students.

Turtles & Octopi

Some of the articles will be on sale include a black stuffed turtle, octopi, stuffed lambs, deer, etc; knitted sweaters, gloves, hats, fudge, cookies, bread, etc. A giant cake donated by R.V.C. will be raffled off. Red Christmas stockings were made as a Freshette project by the freshettes of R.V.C., as well as other Christmas decorations. Other articles include second hand books, jewelry, aprons, cards, a painting, etc.

A Tea Room will be operated during the Fair, where tea and cakes will be served.

Proceeds from this Fair will go towards the Women's Union Scholarship Fund, begun this year. Last year the Bazaar, which was much along the same lines as the Fair, raised well over seven hundred dollars, and the Women's Union hopes to be equally as successful again.

The Co-Chairman for the Fair are Valerie Chaykovsky and Judy Darling, committee heads are Margie Mitchell, Bev Tarr, Stephanie Stern, Harriet Solomon, Elizabeth MacDonald, Gail Gnaedinger, Claire Cassidy.

All Welcome

The Women's Union emphasizes that all students, male or female, are urged to come to the Fair which will continue until 9 pm.

SEC, SCARLET KEY, RED WINGS FIGURE AMONG ORGANIZATIONS AFFECTED BY VOTE RETURNS

by Peter Rehak

39.8% of the campus voted in yesterday's election. This was a decline from 47% last year. Lloyd Sankey, chief returning officer of the election, stated: "Although the election did not attract a larger percentage of voters, it ran very smoothly, and the new system of counting proved very efficient."

SEC

Morris Fish and Donna Irony were elected to represent Arts and Science on the SEC, while Nick Asimakopulos was chosen from Commerce. George Desjardins will represent the faculty of Engineering.

Law will be represented by Anthony LaFleur and Fred Lowy will represent the faculty of Medicine.

Architecture elected Matthias Welchner as their representative, and Physiotherapy chose Claire Hudson.

Herman Zloklikovits and George Tetenburg were acclaimed from Dentistry and Music and Divinity respectively.

Women's Union

Anita Jonas was elected vice-president of the Women's Union over Virginia Mansour.

Holly McCuaig and Janet Rutherford were chosen as non-resident members-at-large. Mary Ogden was acclaimed to the post of resident member-at-large. Marian MacDougal will be the M.W.S.A.A. representative.

Red Wing Society

Seven girls were elected to the Red Wing Society: Julie Adams, Derry Allen, Nancy Roland, Carlotta Garcia, Nadia Pavlychenko, Helen Kydd, and Judith Molyneux.

Scarlet Key Society

Arts and Science: Morris Fish, Eric Rennert, Dave Millman, and Philip Belitsky.

Commerce: Nick Asimakopulos, Seymour Cramer, Dan Gold, and John Wallace. The last two were tied for third place with 71 votes. Although only three were to be chosen from this category, the tie necessitated a fourth selection.

Law: Morton Bessner, and Henri LaFleur.

Architecture: Wilfred Lamb.

Dentistry: William Pepin.

Engineering: Peter Baird, Alex Bergel, George Desjardins, Mike French, Don Brennan, and Bill Hutchison.

CUS

In the Commerce Undergraduate Society the following were elected to the posts of class president: 1st year: Stephen Weinstein, 2nd year: Steve Coplen, 3rd year: David Stein, and fourth year (permanent) class president is Taylor Carlin.

EUS

In the Engineering Undergraduate Society election Bill Hodges was elected treasurer.

First Showing Of Antigone Tonight

Sophocles' "Antigone", McGill University's first production of the 1957-58 season, will open tonight at the University's Moyse Hall for a three-day run.

A tragedy in the classic Greek tradition, the play has a theme of personal justice versus state justice. Written in 441 B.C., the social and political problems of the play remain amazingly relevant today. The use of the Chorus and mood of the sets reflect the timelessness and message of the play.

Antigone, daughter of the doomed Oedipus, will be played by Valerie Jamieson, a veteran of several McGill productions. Ismene, sister to Antigone, will be played by Jane Anders, while Creon, the powerful king of Thebes will be portrayed by Ted Brown. Marvin Bartell, known for his many roles in McGill theatrical ventures plays the Chorus leader, and Paul Hecht plays Haimon, Creon's son, who is torn between loyalty to his father and love for Antigone.

The play will be directed and produced by John J. Sommers, newly-appointed producer of McGill University Department of English Productions.

Lighting will be by Creighton Douglas; sets by Neil Madden.

Althea Douglas, well known for her work in Montreal theatre, has designed the costumes for "Antigone".

Tickets will be on sale in the Arts Building from 10 to 5 today and Friday, and from 10 to 1 on Saturday. They may also be purchased at the door on the nights of the performances.

Editorials

A Canadian First

There are some organizations which by their nature, methods and purpose deserve the unqualified support of the public. One such organization in the university world is the World University Service, better known as WUS.

The Canadian branch of this service (WUSC) is a particularly virile member; its annual international seminar is easily one of the most useful of such student forums and in Treasure Van it has made a unique Canadian contribution to international student welfare.

Many may not be aware of it but the idea of Treasure Van was born at McGill, where the sale first saw the light as a local India Sale — a show of Indian handicrafts. It has now widened to include articles from many countries and an annual travelling sale touching most universities across the country and grossing some $30,000. International recognition has now come to the show with the launching in Germany this week of their first Treasure Van based on the Canadian model. Several other European countries are also considering the venture.

A great deal of praise is due to Mrs. Ethel Mulvany, the director of the van, and to her staff who have laboured for five years crisscrossing the continent in a work of genuine dedication and love.

The Treasure Van now open at the Union for a week is more than a sale which gives opportunity to buy unusual and worthwhile gifts for Xmas; it is an education in the arts of far away places, it is an opportunity for the average student to make a contribution to the welfare of his less fortunate counterparts in underdeveloped countries while at the same time getting a good buy.

It's Not Paris

What's the matter with Old Montreal? Within a one thousand mile arc Our Town is known to suave Americans as the "Gay City"; the "Little Paris". However, if this reputation is what draws the Americans here, they might just as well stay home.

The "wide-open" town is asleep on weekdays, and closes up altogether on New Year's Eve. And the nightclubs — the fabulous clubs that are scattered through the downtown area: it is more than likely that the "Frenchest" nightspot the tourist sees is an expensive English club, featuring American semi-stars and a few semi-strippers. He could probably see a show of much higher calibre at home. If he goes to a club featuring an all-French show, he is likely to be subjected to bad acts as well as bad liquor, and he is apt to find the whole thing very sordid.

One can still walk down St. Catherine Street and drink in the atmosphere — the sounds, the sights, of a city built and peopled by men of two diverse origins. The walk will be satisfying, provided that it is taken before midnight. By that time, the two peoples, tired after a hard day, have retired for the night.

What has happened to that carefree Frenchman who is symbolized as a great hairy arm in the beer ads, breaking a chain with his bare hands? What has happened to the gay Englishman who is carried away by the exuberance of his French brothers? Where is the reckless student that we hear so much about? Do all these people only come out once a year, to stage a riot so that we will know they still exist? Things aren't the same anymore...

Letters To The Editor

Union, Pool, Food

Sir,

I must commend Mr. Rehak for his obvious interest in the welfare of the McGill Union and for his criticism of its policies and programme. However, as an aid to future criticism, may I advise him to do a little research on his subject and to be sure of all his facts before making such sweeping condemnations.

A "ladies pool night" — our cheap publicity farce he calls it — is nothing new among college unions. If Mr. Rehak would care to investigate he would find that many of the larger unions in the United States and Canada feature this type of affair as an integral part of their programme, and have been doing so for many years. As a matter of fact, it's not even a new venture at McGill. Mr. Rehak, B.A.3, should know that a series of such nights was successfully run in the McGill Union two years ago.

He says that McGill females "obviously have no desire to play pool." I beg to differ with him. It was precisely due to their interest and desire to play billiards that these evenings were revived. To be frank, we were quite amazed at the number of co-eds who stated that they'd like to learn and play the game. It was for this reason that we decided to set one night aside each week, provide an instructor, and allow girls and their dates to play free of charge. Not a cheap publicity stunt, Mr. Rehak, but an attempt to provide a previously denied recreational activity to a segment of the student population.

Mr. Rehak then goes on to talk about the poor quality of the food in the Cafeteria and Grill room. I think he tends to generalize here. True, there has been the odd time when cold meals have been served, but this has always been immediately drawn to the attention of the staff and steps taken to correct the situation.

All menus are carefully checked by the Union executive a week in advance to ensure that students will receive only the best possible meals. As a matter of fact, Mr. Rehak, our figures show that more people are coming down this year to eat at the Union than in any previous year. I ask you — is this indicative of poor meals?

Yes, Mr. Rehak, we might just be a "bunch of busybodies", as you call us, but at least we bring all the facts into full view.

Murray Butler,
Chairman, Board of Managers,
McGill Students' Union

Guck And Gals

Sir,

This is a man's world (American psychologists to the contrary) and almost every stupid thing that women do, including plastering their faces with guck, can be explained as an attempt to please men. I don't think that you will find large numbers of women abandoning their makeup before the majority of men stop rating beauty, attractiveness, sexiness etc above every other possible female quality. Makeup is the manifestation of a phenomenon common in our society — the self made man — or, in this case, the self made woman. Cosmetics ensure that effort and knowhow can equal inborn advantage. I suggest that next time one of the first sex gets his face befouled with grease and pink dust that he either remember that his girl is not only trying to please him but is also being 'democratic'; or that he make her wipe it off and start appreciating her for qualities other than her looks.

Logic Pays Off: Startled Student Fools IBM Machine

For a few agonizing minutes yesterday, fourth year Arts student Leonard I. Sabloff had serious reason to doubt that he was of the male sex. He even had doubts as to whether his name was Sabloff.

The culprit in this embarrassing drama was the class list of Philosophy 310.

When Professor Miller announced that the department's list and his list of the class members differed by a single name no one took much interest. But when he wrote the name on the board (he couldn't pronounce it) at least one of the students showed an interest. The list contained the name Samlyfflornd and under the 'Sex' column there was a zero.

Sabloff recognized the name as being his own (and in so doing proved himself worthy of the Logic course) but was at a loss to know how it had been so transposed.

Professor Miller thought that perhaps the I.B.M. machine had "burped" but opinion expressed by a secretary in the Registrar's office was that Sabloff had written his name illegibly at Registration.

to the floor of the Commons as "third-class mail."

Previous to the tabling of the main bill, several others were read. The Speaker pointed out that this section of procedure was known as "Orders of the Day."

Bills tabled included proposals to: allow foreign-born doctors to practise in veterans' hospitals; create new criminal courts for offenses punishable by imprisonments under two years; and abolish the whip as punishment for sexual offenders.

The main bill was then debated by several members from both sides of the House. Also speaking was Heath McQuarrie, M.P., P.C. Member of Parliament. In reference to the bill before the House he observed that, whenever a tyrant takes over a state, the first thing he does is to crush municipal rights. Hence the term "provincial rights", he said, meant more to him than a hollow phrase.

Baltzan Hero As Redmen 6-3 Victors In League Opener

by Fred Seligman

Quebec, Dec. 4; The McGill hockey Redmen tonight made their first League start a winning one by outplaying Laval University to the tune of 6-3. Once again the threesome of Dick Baltzan, Leo Konyk and Doug McGregor supplied the knockout blow as they racked up all the Redmen markers.

Baltzan, the smooth-skating center, notched the winner midway through the third period and also picked up assists on the other five goals. Konyk came up with the hat trick and McGregor gained two goals and a like number of assists.

A big factor in the McGill victory was the steady netminding of Michel Joyal who was called on to handle 25 shots while the Redmen let go 31 drives at the Laval goaler. Rocky Robillard's defencemen all turned in generally strong efforts to keep the 'Rouge et Or' bottled up constantly.

Offensively it was a one line contribution on both sides as the Laval goals came from the sticks of Pierre Raymond, Michel Lagace and Andre Arsenault, one of the highest scoring trios in the college loop last winter.

Robillard was very satisfied with the show his boys put on, and things thus take a much brighter note than they did at this time last year.

McGill Wrestlers vs Dartmouth Sat.

Coach Alan Turnbull of the McGill Wrestling team has had his hands full for the past few weeks in preparation for the matches against Dartmouth on December 7th at Athletics Night.

The team as a whole represents an unknown quantity in that most of the fellows who have turned out this year have never wrestled before. Most of the time at practices has therefore been devoted to the fundamentals of the game.

Ted Geurtin, who is the only member of last year's intercollegiate team to return, will undoubtedly represent McGill once again in the 130 weight class. As of yet the coach has no one in the 123 class due to a recurrent injury suffered by Stan Hopmeyer.

The only bright spot on the team is the return of Mark Hatt. Hatt the 1950-51 intercollegiate champ has returned to McGill to continue his studies in the Faculty of Dentistry. He is in top condition and is expected to bring back another championship to McGill.

Dartmouth, as in the past, is expected to be represented by a very strong team. The McGill Team will therefore have to be really up for these matches in order to make a creditable showing.

Girls' Basketball

The Women's Open Basketball League opens today as McGill plays host to two Y.M.C.A. teams. The first game slated for 7:30 pm sees a McGill senior squad tangle with the "Y". The second game, which will commence immediately afterward will have McGill play against a junior team representing the "Y".

The senior team will be comprised of potential intercollegiate team members while the junior team will be composed of either ineligible players (conditioned students) or those still lacking the finesse and experience to represent McGill at an intercollegiate tournament.

For tonight's game scorers and timers are needed. All interested students with some knowledge of basketball please sign the list at R.V.C. The games will be completed by 9:30.
